NPS Tweaks; Blessing for Savers

With the several tweaks and steps taken by The Pension Fund Regulatory and Development Authority (PFRDA) in the National Pension Scheme (NPS), it has become the most appreciated and investor-friendly option for the citizens of India. The recent changes or modifications in the rules attached to NPS have made it convenient for the investors to plan and invest in the scheme without banging their heads over the question of 'How' and 'When'. It has become one of the most lucrative schemes for all the citizens of India and has provided a golden opportunity for the major chunk of the populace who missed their windows to enrol in retirement pension schemes due to the age barrier.

Under the new rule by PFRDA, the retiree or subscriber will be able to withdraw the corpus amount from their permanent retired account without even buying a pension plan. This is permitted only when the corpus is above Rs. 5 Lakh. In situations like this, the retiree will have the choice to withdraw the full retirement corpus without purchasing any annuity. One does not need to compulsorily buy a pension now to withdraw your entire retirement corpus on maturity for the NPS subscriber.

The PFRDA has recently extended the maximum age of entry for the citizens of India from 65 to 70 years thus further extending the exit age of the individual to 75 years. Those who are already enrolled with the scheme, too get the privilege of extending the account till the age of 70 years.

To further make the deal enticing, the PFRDA has further glorified the scheme by allowing Senior Citizens and Retired Officials above 65 years of age to enrol under the scheme so that they too can plan their retirement as per their wish while enjoying the tax benefits and garner funds for the annuity.

Ergo, with such investor-friendly upgrades in NPS, the scheme becomes rewarding or remunerable for all the citizens of India and also opens a window of making a great retirement corpus for the major portion of the populace to enrol with the scheme.

Protection Plans You Should Consider Buying For You & Your Family

Healthcare these days has become an expensive affair and will be difficult to get the proper assistance with a lack of the right kind of financial resources. Covid has also affected the economy hard where many have lost their lives as well as jobs and in such a situation, getting hospitalized with low or no source of constant income can further burn deep holes in your savings.

Health Insurance has become essential after the Covid-19 hit the country. As per a survey conducted in India, only 10 percent of the population were insured by some kind of health insurance during the pre-Covid times which has now gone up to 71 percent once the second wave of pandemic hit the country.

The Value of a Health Insurance

With medical expenses skyrocketing every day with the ever-expensive treatment and medical bills, it is important to have good health insurance coverage to keep you afloat during medical emergencies. Health insurance is now easy to apply and all the facilities are available at the tip of the finger since the process is all digital and online. There are few features you should have in mind while choosing health insurance.

- Cashless Feature
- Before and After Hospitalization Support
- Ambulance Cost Coverage
- No Claims Bonus Facility
- Hospital Room Rent Coverage

You can get family health insurance as well where one health insurance policy will be able to offer health insurance benefits to your family including your parents, your spouse, and your children. Under family health insurance, however, one won't be able to cover their siblings.

It is compulsory to have invested in health insurance to have a safe and secured life especially during the pandemic era where life has become uncertain.
